Who we are

The Aga Khan Schools comprises the Aga Khan Education Services and the Aga Khan Academies.

We manage and operate schools in some of the most rural and remote areas in the world, mostly in areas where access to quality education is limited.

We also partner with other agencies to indirectly support with improvements in the quality of government schools.

What we do

- Provide access to quality, affordable education across generations in the communities we serve.
- Deliver education that is grounded in local contexts and cultures, with a global outlook.
- Ensure seamless progression from the early years to higher secondary level.
- Equip students with the knowledge, skills and values needed for life and further study.
- Develop individuals with a strong ethical framework.
